Royals join in on Canada Day fete

Queen Elizabeth II, Prince Philip celebrate holiday with 350,000 at Parliament Hill

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Queen Elizabeth II inspects the Honour Guard as she arrives to take part in Canada Day celebrations on Parliament Hill in Ottawa on Thursday. The royal couple is on a nine-day tour of Canada. More coverage, pages 4, 5.

It was a party fit for a Queen.

The presence of Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, at the Canada Day festivities on Parliament Hill Thursday helped bring an estimated 350,000 people downtown, said National Capital Commission spokesman Guy Laflamme.

While Canada Day "is the nation's party, it's also a time that we can stop and think about the unique values and achievements we have accomplished as a nation," he said. "This is probably as close as you get to the level of Canadian pride we experience during the Olympics." TRACEY TONG

▶ Barenaked Ladies celebrate Canada Day in nation's capital ▶ Icons say making music's about connecting with the audience — royalty or not

TRACEY TONG

They performed for the Queen for the first time yesterday, but they're just as happy playing for a small audience as they are Her Royal Highness.

For Canadian music staple the Barenaked Ladies, making music is about connecting with people, royalty or not.

TYLER STEWART

"To me, success is measured by how well we connect with people," BNL drummer Tyler Stewart told Metro. Playing for the Queen, he said, "is another thing to add to our amazing career so far. We've played for all kinds of different people, for hockey stars and on awards shows, but I love playing for any audience. I feel blessed to be able to do that, to entertain people."

And so they did, at Parliament Hill yesterday.

"We were looking up at the Parliament Buildings and saying, 'that's a really cool building,'" he said. "It's very beautiful. It gives you a sense of national pride."

Hundreds of thousands gather on Parliament Hill as Ottawa celebrates Canada Day
Queen Elizabeth II on hand for the festivities
Despite the crush of people, Canadians have fun while staying well-behaved, says NCC spokesman

Ottawa celebrates 143 years of Canada

For Brittany Heil, there's no better place to be on Canada Day than on Parliament Hill.

Despite "squashed toes," "no cover from the sun" and "overpriced street meat," Heil said the energy of people downtown on Canada Day is like nothing else.

Although 2010 is not a survey year for the National Capital Commission, "the crowd seemed to be very dense," said spokesman Guy Laflamme.

Many of these people, he said, came out to see the Queen.

"Whenever we benefit from a royal visit, it has an impact on attendance," he said.

Even with the crush of people, revellers were very well behaved during Canada Day, he said.

"The degree of peaceful, respectful behaviour is typical of the values of ... Canadians," he said. "There's a huge degree of respect and calm despite the crowds and the density of people on the hill."

July 1 party

Visitors from beyond the Ottawa region come into town to join the party, the city rakes in big cash, and the Navy gets its due after 100 years.

- Visitors Of the estimated 350,000 people who attended Canada Day yesterday, roughly 40 per cent are coming from outside the Ottawa region, said Guy Laflamme of the NCC.
- Money Canada Day is Ottawa's biggest one-day event, generating $20 million in economic activity and a net economic impact of $10 million for Ottawa-Gatineau.
- Centennial celebration This year, Canada is celebrating the centennial of the Canadian Navy and the anniversary of the creation of Banff as a national park, Laflamme said.

Outside of downtown, the Canada Aviation and Space Museum was the place to be for thousands of people on Canada Day yesterday.

The free open house at the museum began with a meet-and-greet with astronaut and former CF-18 fighter pilot Chris Hadfield.

Visitors were also able to go for flights in several of the vintage planes outside the museum.

6,000

The number of visitors estimated to have attended the Canada Aviation and Space Museum open house yesterday.

Orleans residents Marguerite Bujold and Jerry Hamelin took advantage of the offer to experience Canada Day from the sky, but were disappointed they couldn't get near Parliament Hill.

Normally it's not a problem, said pilot Greg Reynolds, but due to the Queen's visit, airspace around Parliament Hill had been restricted.

"I'm coming back. That's why I wanted to go up today," said Bujold. "But it was great. I would recommend that people do it, if they get the opportunity."

"When you turn, you look over and see the water and whole city. It was great," said Hamelin.

Cisco Ottawa Bluesfest just became a laughing matter.

Organizers announced the addition of a new stand-up comedy initiative to this year's lineup at LeBreton Flats Park.

"We'll be presenting comedy each day of the festival along with our music programming," said Bluesfest executive director Mark Monahan.

"A lot of these comedians are world-calibre."
MARK MONAHAN, BLUESFEST EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Headliners include Wayne Brady from Whose Line Is it Anyway? on July 6; Louis C.K. on July 9 and Lewis Black on July 17.

"A lot of these comedians are world-calibre, and we believe people here will really respond to that," Monahan said.

"We felt that there has been no real comedy festival in Ottawa. And comedy that does come through Ottawa does really, really well."

Monahan said he hopes the comedy element becomes just as big as the music.

The comedy shows are performed at the newly renamed Black Sheep Music and Comedy Tent, adjacent to the Canadian War Museum.

GULF OIL SPILL

BP faces a record of shame

British Petroleum's massive oil spill is ready to become the largest ever in the Gulf of Mexico.

It's an ominous record that underscores the oil giant's dire need to halt the gusher. Based on the highest of the U.S. federal government's estimates, the oil that has gushed for two and a half months from a blown-out well two kilometres under the sea was expected to surpass the 530-million-litre mark on Thursday. That eclipses the Ixtoc I spill off Mexico's coast in 1979. Even by the lower end of the government's estimates, at least 270 million litres are in the Gulf. That calculation is based on the barrels leaked per day, minus the amount BP says it has collected from the blown-out well using containment systems.

Officials supervising California sex offender didn't spot victim

California lawmakers have approved a $20-million settlement with the family of Jaycee Dugard, who was kidnapped as a girl and held captive in a secret backyard for 18 years by a paroled sex offender.

Dugard, 30, resurfaced last August with two daughters she allegedly bore with Phillip Garrido, a convicted rapist.

Dugard, her mother and daughters filed claims in February. They claimed state officials failed to do their jobs. Parole agents began supervising Garrido in 1999 but failed to discover Dugard.

The Dugard family members claimed psychological, physical and emotional damages.

"I can't emphasize enough that we've got to be much more prudent in terms of how we provide oversight for released prisoners in the state of California," Assemblyman Ted Gaines said.

"Jaycee and her children, now 13 and 16, are now living in seclusion and will need many years of therapy, education and health care."
ASSEMBLYMAN FELIPE FUENTES

Garrido and his wife, Nancy, have pleaded not guilty to charges that they kidnapped and raped the young woman.

Dugard and her children were hidden at the Garrido home in the eastern San Francisco Bay area city of Antioch, authorities said.

Al Gore sex case reopened by police

- Hotel masseuse says he groped her and kissed her
- Aide says a new probe will only benefit the ex-VP

Al Gore says he welcomes a decision by police in Portland, Ore., to reopen an investigation into a massage therapist's allegations that he groped her at a hotel four years ago.

Gore spokesperson Kalee Kreider said the former U.S. vice-president "unequivocally and emphatically" denies making sexual advances.

She added: "Further investigation into this matter will only benefit Mr. Gore."

Police did not say why they are reopening the investigation.

The woman alleges Gore made unwanted sexual advances during a massage appointment on Oct. 24, 2006, at the downtown Hotel Lucia, where Gore was reportedly registered as "Mr. Stone."

Gore and wife Tipper announced in an email to friends last month that they are separating.

Gore, who served as vice-president under former president Bill Clinton in the 1990s, lost the 2000 presidential election to George W. Bush.

Gore turned his attention to climate change, undertaking a worldwide campaign that led to a Nobel Peace Prize.

A 'sex poodle'?

The masseuse accused Al Gore in a 2009 interview with police:

- She said Gore groped her, kissed her and pinned her down on a bed.
- She told him he was acting like a "crazed sex poodle."
- She said Gore "wrapped me in an inescapable embrace," looked her in the eyes and touched her back, buttocks and breasts.
- She alleged Gore demanded she drink cognac, though she told him she didn't drink alcohol.
- She said: "I feared that if I ran for the door to get out, I could or would be violently accosted by some security detail. I felt certain even the smallest complaint ... could also destroy my work reputation."

▶ U.S. company hopes to reach that Jetsons dream.

Remember, drivers, keep your eyes on the sky

Company plans to unveil the Transition 'car-plane' next year

If cars had wings, they could fly — and that just might happen, beginning next year.

The company Terrafugia says it plans to deliver its car-plane, the Transition, to customers by the end of 2011. It recently cleared a major hurdle when the Federal Aviation Administration granted a special weight limit exemption to the Transition.

"It's the next 'wow' vehicle," said Terrafugia vice-president Richard Gersh.

"Anybody can buy a Ferrari, but as we say, Ferraris don't fly."

The Transition is a long way from cartoons like The Jetsons with flying cars zooming above traffic. Rather, the car-plane has wings that unfold for flying — a process the company says takes one minute — and fold back up for driving. A runway is still required to take off and land.

The Transition is being marketed more as a plane that drives than a car that flies, although it is both.

The company is pitching the Transition to private pilots as a more convenient — and cheaper — way to fly.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The numbers

More info about the Transition, the new car-plane from Terrafugia.

- Height. The plane is designed to fly primarily under 3,000 metres.
- Weight. It has a maximum takeoff weight of 649 kilograms, including fuel and passengers.
- Efficiency. Gas mileage on the road is about 12.75 kilometres per litre.
- Price. The cost is $194,000.

Canada to leave dam fine legacy in Afghanistan

- Dahla Dam project paying off for Arghandab district
- Government committed to $50M over three years

In an arid wasteland of desert, dust, and drought, water is worth its weight in gold — a life-giving legacy that Canada hopes to leave behind in Afghanistan when it starts pulling out a year from now.

When Ottawa decided in 2008 to establish a firm pullout date for Afghanistan, it also opted to identify three specific target areas for development: rebuilding the tactically important Dahla Dam in the heart of Kandahar's Arghandab district, developing schools and vaccinating locals for polio.

Of those projects, the dam — on which Canada has committed to spend $50 million over three years — is the crown jewel, and recommended by Hamid Karzai himself.

THE CANADIAN PRESS HANDOUT

▶ Villagers hard at work.

And for the first time in decades, the Dahla Dam is channelling badly needed water into the Arghandab district's once-parched fields.

During a recent flyover of the dam and its surrounding environs, lush green orchards resembling those in the Okanagan Valley could be seen for miles.

"To see the amount of green that's there now and further inland is really encouraging," federal International Development Minister Bev Oda said at the time.

"When you can visually see progress, it's very rewarding."

SUBPRIME CRISIS LOOMS LARGE IN CANADA

Other people's money

DAVID DESCÔTEAUX

We're all Americans now.

Marc is in charge of mortgages at a large bank. He's getting nervous. "Many cases are scaring me. One customer owes $60,000 in credit card debt, and he wants to refinance his mortgage to repay it!" Another uses his house as an ATM. "He's refinanced his mortgage eight times. To buy a ski-doo, a truck, a boat … The day his house's value starts falling, this guy will lose everything."

Is this scene taking place in the U.S.? No. In Montreal. Partly thanks to our politicians, we've all become Americans — version 2007, a few months before their economy collapsed.

Remember what caused the financial crisis: The central bank (the Fed) slashed interest rates, holding them too low, too long. What do you do when interest rates are low? You borrow to buy a house. You take out a line of credit and buy a car. Save? When a deposit certificate earns 1.5 per cent? No thanks. With help from "creative" bankers, this fuelled the biggest housing and debt bubble the world has ever seen. Then the bubble popped, leaving millions unemployed.

What are politicians doing here? Same thing. The Bank of Canada has kept interest rates at rock bottom levels for almost three years now.

Remember Fannie Mae and Freddy Mac? Those loan companies have so far cost U.S. taxpayers $250 billion. Here we have the CMHC. The Crown corporation insures about 60 per cent of banks' mortgage loans — generally the riskiest ones. Last year, the government allowed CMHC to insure up to $600 billion in mortgages, up from $450 billion the year before. Since CMHC is backed by taxpayer money, banks can lend to people who can't afford it without bearing the risk. You think they had any scruples about doing so?

As a result, people are spending like there's no tomorrow. Meanwhile, Canadians are drowning in debt. A recent survey showed that one in four of us would be unable to cope with an unexpected expense of $5,000, even if allowed to use credit cards!

We have created a legion of subprime borrowers, one broken refrigerator away from default. If interest rates rise, the U.S. economy relapses, or home prices fall ... our house of cards collapses.

Politicians should understand that building a healthy economy requires saving, not mountains of debt.

Facebook applications need user permission

Facebook is rolling out a new feature that requires outside applications and websites to tell users exactly what parts of their profiles have to be shared for the apps to work.

Applications already had to ask users for permission to access anything in their profiles that wasn't public. But these services didn't have to specify what information they were using. Such information can include your photos, your friends' birthdays or your email address. Under the new policy, the services will say which aspects of a profile they will mine, but the user still won't be able to pick out which pieces they want to grant access to.

Dental X-rays, Are They Really Necessary?

Until dentists can develop "Superman style" x-ray vision enabling them to see between your teeth and beneath your gum tissue, the answer is "Yes!"

There are over two hundred diseases which can occur in the mouth and jaw, some of which may be life threatening.

Many forms of hidden dental disease can only be identified by dental x-rays. Cavities between the teeth, infection of the bone around the tooth root, impacted wisdom teeth, as well as cysts and tumors of the jaw are a few examples.

Left undetected, hidden dental disease(s) may result in the unnecessary loss of a tooth, or even a life.

"I don't want to have any x-rays taken." or "I don't see any reason to have x-rays!" These objections are occasionally raised by some people and are understandable. But, scientifically speaking they are baseless.

It is essential that patients allow dental x-rays to be taken when needed, and at the same time be assured that modern x-ray equipment is safe, and every effort is made to keep exposure levels as low as reasonably possible. Fact is, there's no reason for concern by patients undergoing a dental x-ray examination using current x-ray techniques and equipment. The amount of radiation received from one dental x-ray is approximately the same as that received in a single day from natural sources. This is known as background radiation and includes cosmic rays from outer space and radioactive sand and stones.

A complete x-ray survey, taken once every several years, usually consists of 14 - 18 exposures. To better comprehend the risk of such an examination, consider that traveling 300 miles by car, having one chest x-ray taken in a good hospital; or smoking just 1.5 cigarettes would carry the same health risk. Clearly, the benefits considerably outweigh the risks.

Dental x-ray is proven to be one of the most effective diagnostic tools that dentists can use for finding dental diseases such as periodontal disease and cavities. The small amount spent on preventive and diagnostic services such as x-rays results in dollars saved, by avoiding the need for more expensive dental treatment later on.

Yours for better dental health,

Dr. David J. Halpin

5 MINUTES WITH: STEPHANE PHILIPPE

Stephane Philippe (www.theringfinders.com) helps those desperate people try to find lost rings or other pieces of jewelry.

Tell me what you do?

I help people find their rings that have been lost in the backyard or the beach or anywhere that they think they lost it. With my (metal detector) I basically find their item.

Are you making a living at this?

No, this is purely just a hobby, just a passion. I like helping people out. When people lose something, especially a ring, there's a story attached to it. What I do is I make that story continue by finding the ring or the chain or the bracelet.

"No, this is purely just a hobby, just a passion. I like helping people out. When people lose something, especially a ring, there's a story attached to it. What I do is I make that story continue by finding the ring or the chain or the bracelet."
STEPHANE PHILIPPE

You work on a reward basis. How does that work?

It's the same way as you would put an ad in a newspaper or on the Internet — if you lose a ring or a wallet, you would offer a reward. I go to collect the reward and I take 15 per cent of the reward and give it to charity.

Nice. Do you have a favourite charity?

CHEO. A friend of mine, her son is autistic, so he's been to CHEO quite often, and it's something I really care about.

Ever lose your car keys?

Yes I have.

Was the metal detector any help?

No, it wasn't (laughs). I actually lost them at the shopping centre and, unfortunately, the machine didn't help at all, but I've helped people find their car keys and all kinds of stuff like that. As long as it's metallic, I'll be able to find it. My success rate is over 95 per cent.

TORONTO. I didn't know it was possible to feel even more blessed and thankful to be Canadian. But then a month ago, my family and friends were attacked and killed back home in Lahore, Pakistan, solely for their religious beliefs. Each time my heart ached for the persecution, violence and hatred they regularly faced, I couldn't help but feel so blessed and thankful to call this great country my home and native land.

Canada allows me to live my hyphenated identity; I can openly tell people I am an Ahmadi Muslim and be a proud, hockey-loving Canadian at the same time.

Bending the elements

metro
OTTAWA
Weekend, July 2-4, 2010

WEEKEND

FOR METRO CANADA

At least M. Night Shyamalan finally tried something new.

The Sixth Sense director — dedicated to twist endings and subtle chills — has ventured out of his comfort zone for The Last Airbender, based the popular anime-influenced Nickelodeon series Avatar.

He's going for Star Wars-style childish thrills, but unfortunately his movie is weighed down by measured pacing and unrelenting seriousness.

These qualities worked well in his early thrillers, but suck the life out of this cartoon adventure.

It's like watching Al Gore struggling through a comedy routine, but without the unintentional laughs.

The film is set in a world divided into four factions based on their ability to control, or "bend," one of the four elements (air, earth, fire, and water).

A unifying figure known as The Avatar used to exist who could control all of the elements and united the world in peace.

Unfortunately he's been missing for years and the fire tribe now controls the world with a flaming fist.

That is until a young water bender and her brother discover a small child frozen in the ice who just might be the long lost avatar.

The Last Airbender
Director: M. Night Shyamalan
Stars: Noah Ringer, Nicola Peltz, Dev Patel
Rating:

It's a complicated and intriguing mythology, but sadly the film tries to cram 20 television episodes worth of material into 100 minutes.

As a result, every non-action scene is dedicated to exposition with no time for characterization, humour, or a satisfying story structure.

Shyamalan is a talented director and has the money and resources to craft some impressive sequences, but is simply the wrong choice for this material.

Shyamalan has always been an overrated writer, and he has managed to turn a fast-paced animated series into an epic on-screen bore.

Revolution doc lacking a political punch

Canadian filmmakers look at protest music's plight post 9-11 Movie too focused on American artists

IAN GORMLEY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Sounds Like a Revolution
Genre: Documnetary
Directors: Summer Love, James Michner
Rating:

Protest music has probably been around since the first cavepeople picked up two rocks and started pounding out a beat. But while its usefulness at conveying opinions and ideas is as strong as ever, its social influence has significantly dwindled.

Sounds Like a Revolution, the new doc from Canadian filmmakers Summer Love and Jane Michener, argues that the post 9-11 world has produced more politically active artists than ever before, but the average person would never hear their music due to corporate and political interests trumping these artists right to speak their minds.

The film uses artist and expert interviews spliced with some great concert footage (Rage Against the Machine's a cappella rendition of Killing in the Name Of is especially sweet) to prove its point.

But interviews with been-around-protest-block artists like David Crosby and Pete Seeger far outweigh ones with relative nubes like Michael Franti or NOFX's Fat Mike. Their of-the-moment earnest political platitudes, although well intentioned, just can't trump the perspective offered by their older peers.

Perhaps Sounds Like a Revolution's biggest flaw is its singular focus on American bands protesting American policy. It ignores the thousands of bands around the world who are actively speaking out against governments willing to give far less leeway to dissent (i.e. none).

These bands flirt with imprisonment by just performing, whereas the bands featured in this doc wonder why they can't get played on the radio. For all its loud sabre-rattling, Sounds Like a Revolution has very little to say.

CARTOON TO FILM A TOUGH GO

InFocus

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Like Scooby Doo and Inspector Gadget before it, this weekend's The Last Airbender first saw the light of day as an animated television show. Director M. Night Shyamalan first came across Avatar: The Last Airbender, when his daughter said she wanted to be one of the characters, Katara, for Halloween.

After that watching the show became "a family event in my house," says the director. "When I saw the cartoon I thought it was so well thought out in term of mythology. It had Buddhism, martial arts and CGI (and it was) character based. I knew it would make a great feature film … I knew we could do something that wasn't going to be just a great treat for the eyes, but also for the mind and the soul."

Shyamalan is shooting high, hoping to turn The Last Airbender (they had to drop the Avatar part of the TV show's title) into a trilogy. "I have always wanted to develop a long mythology based franchise like The Lord of the Rings," he says.

One television-cartoon-to-big-screen adaptation that lasted more than one installment was The Flintstones. The animated modern stone-age family (with friends Barney and Betty) ruled Saturday morning television for six years, before making the leap to the big screen in 1966 in The Man Called Flintstone, a musical James Bond parody.

After that the show came back to TV in various incarnations — one even featuring the Marvel Comics superhero The Thing — but a return to the big screen took almost thirty years. In The Flintstones, the 1994 live action version, John Goodman Yabba-Dabba-Dooed his way through the film as Fred. Unable to leave well enough alone a prequel,

The Flintstones in Viva Rock Vegas, followed in 2000. Soon though, Fred and Wilma will be back where they belong, in an animated film, set to be released in 2011.

Adrien Brody gets ripped

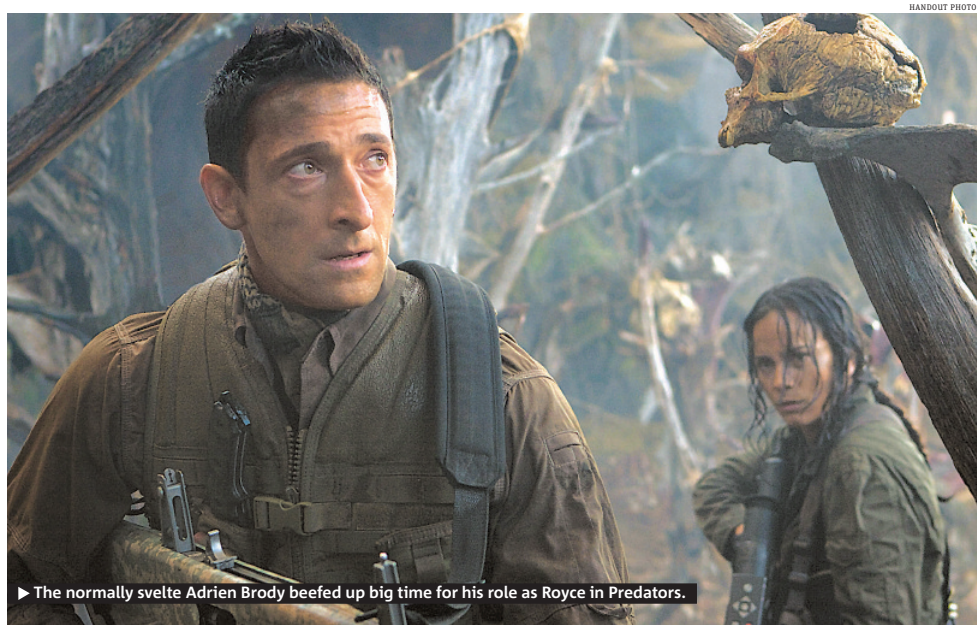
HANDOUT PHOTO



▶ The normally svelte Adrien Brody beefed up big time for his role as Royce in Predators.

Adrien Brody admits that he wasn't the most pleasant person to be around while making Predators, the latest in the major science-fiction franchise.

"I was living a very kind of austere life when I was making this film," he explains. "I had no sugar, no alcohol. I was not having sex, I was in the jungle alone for the most part when we were in Hawaii. And that will make you ferocious. I was training six days a week and lifting very heavy weights, which increases your body's testosterone output."

All that preparation was necessary to transform the normally slender Oscar-winner into Royce, an intimidating mercenary and survivalist dropped onto an alien planet to be hunted for sport by the series' namesake creatures. All the bulking up, as well as the conditions of the set, helped get Brody into the right mindset.

"There's a certain degree of emotional transformation that happens when you physically alter yourself. You find yourself very adrenalized," he says. "You are running through a wall of fire and you are wielding an axe-like hammer, and you are interacting with seven-foot-tall monsters. And they hurt when you hit them. I still have scars."

Since winning an Oscar in 2003 for The Pianist, Brody has cut an eclectic path as an actor, going from blockbusters like King Kong to indie fare like The Brothers Bloom.

"I'm always open to new challenges. That's part of what inspires me."

Predator history

- First introduced nearly 25 years ago as the fearsome foe hunting Arnold Schwarzenegger, the Predator aliens have become a fixture of pop culture, spawning novels, comic books, video games and several movies.

TiK ToK stop, says party girl

Ke$ha insists she's nothing like people think she is

Ke$ha, who burst on the scene with the drunken party anthem TiK ToK, wants you to take her seriously.

Seriously.

The pop singer, who is one of the year's top-selling artists and arguably the most successful newcomer, hasn't been recognized for her artistic talents. Instead, she's been bashed for what some see as her vapid lyrical content and party-girl vibe.

But the 23-year-old thinks she has been misrepresented.

"I'm responsible. I wouldn't have a No. 1 record or song if I wasn't a hardworking person," she said.

"I wouldn't have a No. 1 record or song if I wasn't a hardworking person"
KE$HA

"People say 'party girl' and instantly you think: DUI, drug problem, (privates) out, no underwear, going to nightclubs every night. Problem. I'm none of the above," she continued.

Ke$ha's not interested in controlling the public's opinion of her, in any case. She's hard at work on where her career is going. And her career is heading in a promising direction.

Her debut song, TiK ToK, shot straight to No. 1 in the United States, where it sat on top for nine consecutive weeks.

Her album Animal hit the No. 1 spot on the Billboard charts as well; it's sold about 785,000 units since its January release, according to Nielsen SoundScan.

Bueller, Bueller, Bueller...

Los Angeles prosecutors say they have charged Ferris Bueller actor Jeffrey Jones with failing to appear and update his sex offender registration information.

Los Angeles County district attorney's spokeswoman Sandi Gibbons says Jones was charged Wednesday. Records show he was arrested by Los Angeles police on June 23.

The 63-year-old Jones pleaded no contest in 2003 in Florida to a felony charge of employing a 14-year-old boy to pose for sexually explicit photos. He was arrested in 2004 in Florida for failing to register as a sex offender there.

Big Brother 12 plants secret house 'mole'

Producers will include saboteur amongst the cast

Who is the Big Brother saboteur?

That's the question that will no doubt consume contestants on the 12th edition of CBS' voyeuristic reality TV series that confines a group of strangers — or houseguests, as they're known on Big Brother — inside a makeshift two-story domicile for the summer, all while being constantly monitored by over 50 video cameras and 95 microphones.

This season, executive producer Allison Grodner and her team have planted a mole among the houseguests to do viewers' bidding and disrupt the players' lives during Big Brother 12, which debuts July 8 at 8 p.m.

▶ Surprisingly, not the mole

Grodner said the saboteur, who will be revealed to viewers on the July 15 episode, isn't eligible to win the $500,000 grand prize.

"For the first time ever, we have someone in the house who, in a way, is playing their own game," said Grodner, who stressed that the operative is not an actor but a real person, selected to the show.

"They're playing for a cash prize, if they make it a certain amount of time in the house. If they don't last, they're out, and their cover is blown."

Brown not sincere?

MUSIC
Chris Brown's tearful tribute to Michael Jackson at the BET Awards last week caused a lot of criticism, and now it looks like it could have all been an act.

Sources tell Us Weekly that Brown was given tear-inducing eye-drops just before taking the stage. "He rubbed it in and he started crying," a source says.

Brown's representative vehemently denies the accusation.

A HALFTIME MUSIC REPORT

It's officially halftime in 2010 so let's look at some of the music plays from the first six months of the year.

Grunge is Back: New albums from Alice in Chains, Stone Temple Pilots, Bush, Hole plus a reunited Soundgarden and the immortal Pearl Jam have people wondering if someone hasn't set the controls of the DeLorean for June 1994.

The Continuing Collapse of CD Sales: Grunge's resurrection has done little for the calamitous death spiral in CD sales that began in 2001. Ten years ago, $1.44 billion worth of recorded music was sold in the US; last year, it was $769 million. In Canada, sales are running up to 13 per cent behind where they were last year. Things are so dire that it's possible to sneak onto the Billboard Top 200 album chart by selling around 2,500 CDs. If it wasn't for Lady Gaga, Justin Bieber, Drake and those damn Glee kids, things would be a whole lot worse.

The Crisis in the Concert Industry: With revenues from CDs drying up artists have to tour more often and charge more for tickets. Add in high service charges and the perception that scalpers always get the best seats, people are staying away. The Eagles, the Dixie Chicks and, Christina Aguilera have all had to cancel shows because of poor sales. That's not to say that all tours are doing poorly. Just try and get a ticket for any of Rogers Waters' restaging of Pink Floyd's The Wall.

The music industry continues to transition into … something.

Robyn set to drop trilogy of albums

Swedish pop star has been touring extensively since last release five years ago Body Talk brings a blend of bubblegum pop and club music

CAM LINDSAY
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Robyn plans to release three albums by the end of 2010.

In the music biz, five years is an awful long time to wait for a new record. But unlike most artists that tend to lose fans over such an extended period, Swedish pop star Robyn has amassed a fan base that just kept on growing after releasing her career-rejuvenating fourth album back in 2005.

So, it's good news for her fan base then that she will have three albums out by the end of 2010. But the way Robyn describes it, she made the choice as much for herself as she did for us.

"I was trying to find a new way to record and tour at the same time," she explains. "I was really excited to tour the last album as long as I did, but at the same time it's been four and a half years since the last album and two of those years I was touring. For me it was nice to not have to conform to the calendar of the music industry and do it in a way that makes sense to me."

"The thought of waiting five years again to make a new album is tiring to me."
ROBYN

Body Talk, Robyn says, is "a combination of words taken from a club my friend runs in London. I liked what it made me think about. The album is inspired by club culture, dance music, technology and communication, so I guess it means all of that in some kind of way."

The first of the trilogy, Body Talk Pt. 1 continues her self-titled album's perfect amalgam of bubblegum pop and club music. From the chillaxed thump of the Diplo-produced Dancehall Queen to the undulating crescendo of Dancing On My Own, Robyn's emotionally driven steez hits you like the warm glow of slow-mo strobe lighting.

Although they aren't quite done yet, Parts 2 and 3 (which is subtitled Speak Your Body) will have their own uniqueness but won't stray far from the first Body Talk.

"They're going to be different from each other, for sure, because they're being recorded at different times," she says. "But other than that, there's not a conceptual idea of the albums being different. I think that's actually going to give the albums their own identity."

Transitions

Beginning her career at the age of 16, Robyn has seen herself go from a major label puppet to having an identity crisis to becoming one of the most meticulous independent forces in music. Asked what she would tell her teenage self now if she had the opportunity, Robyn says, "I wouldn't want to change anything and I would definitely tell myself to have as much fun as possible, because that's what it's about."

Stop embarrassing me mom!: London

Former Party of Five star says his family is hurting his rep every time they talk to the press

Jeremy London asked a court this week to issue an injunction preventing his mother and brother from giving interviews that the actor claims are hurting his reputation and career.

The lawsuit claimed the interviews may hamper a police investigation in London's alleged kidnapping in Palm Springs, Calif., earlier this month. It named the former Party of Five actor's mother, his twin brother and his brother's fiancée.

The complaint said the trio have ignored requests to stop giving interviews about him after he was reportedly abducted June 10.

He told police he was kidnapped while changing a flat tire and forced at gunpoint to drive around, buy alcohol and take drugs. Brandon Adams, 26, has pleaded not guilty to five counts, including kidnapping and theft, in connection with the alleged abduction.

London's brother and mother conducted an interview with E! Entertainment Television days later and said they were concerned. They added that he had recently been sober and that they were concerned he might relapse because of the incident.

"We are very concerned for him," his brother said. "This is his family's cry for help." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While insiders says America's Got Talent judge Piers Morgan is the frontrunner to take over the Larry King when he retires, King himself has some other ideas. While the "American Idol" host — who also has a daily syndicated radio program — is perfectly comfortable interviewing celebrities, there's still the question of how he would do with other newsmakers, King said.

Cupcake revolution

If you think cupcakes mean palm-sized confections with a little frosting on top, then welcome to What's New, Cupcake, a wacky and wonderful cookbook which turns that image upside down.

Chef and food stylist Karen Tack of Connecticut and acclaimed food photographer Alan Richardson of New York created this second book published by Houghton Mifflin Harcourt. Their first book Hello, Cupcake was released in 2008.

This one is packed with cupcakes for just about any occasion, even for outdoor jaunts.

Ants On A Picnic are startlingly realistic little cakes with grass-green frosting topped with candied watermelon slices. Chocolate ants are stacked on top.

"Alan has such a great sense of the whimsical and it's most refreshing to work with him," says Tack.

All the recipes are made with store-bought cake mixes.

``We like to doctor the cake mixes up to make just the right texture for cupcakes,'' she says. ``We take a boxed mix and substitute the water with buttermilk and we up the eggs to four from three and that makes the batter a little less sweet and firmer.''

Market off to hot start

When the NHL's free-agent market opened for business, the Canadian general managers came charging in with their wallets out.

Mike Gillis lured coveted defenceman Dan Hamhuis to Vancouver and Darryl Sutter dropped some jaws by bringing forwards Olli Jokinen and Alex Tanguay back to Calgary.

The richest contract was the $27 million US Vancouver committed to Hamhuis over six years — and the 27-year-old defenceman turned down more from other interested teams. In fact, his willingness to do so helped seal the deal.

For a free-agent class that wasn't considered very deep, a lot of players found new homes. However, the biggest fish of all remained without one as flashy winger Ilya Kovalchuk continued to weigh his options.

Goaltenders and defencemen were in the highest demand.

Senators make splash with Gonchar deal

- Veteran blue-liner gets $16 million over three years
- Sens GM says former Penguin was his top target

Bryan Murray and the Ottawa Senators got their man on the opening day of free agency, signing veteran Sergei Gonchar to fill a long-existing void on the team's blue-line.

"It adds a great deal to our team — back-end mobility, the point on the power play. That's how you win games in the league now," said Murray, who inked the 36-year-old Gonchar to a three-year, $16-million US deal on Thursday, just minutes after the start of free-agent season.

"He was our No. 1 guy."

The addition of Gonchar, who's been named to four all-star games and won a Stanley Cup with the Pittsburgh Penguins in 2009 during his 15-year NHL career, gives the Senators a different look on the back end.

Sergei Gonchar missed 20 games because of injury last season, but still managed to record 11 goals and 39 assists, seventh in the league among defenceman scoring.

With Anton Volchenkov allowed to leave as an unrestricted free agent and Andy Sutton also not being re-signed, Ottawa loses two of the league's top shot-blocking rearguards. However, it now gains one of the league's premier offensive defencemen — something the Senators have previously lacked.

"From a coach's perspective, I'm very excited," Senators coach Cory Clouston said. "Bryan mentioned that we put together a list of players that we could potentially go after and (Gonchar), obviously, was on the top of our list.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Playing in Canada is something special'

Sergei Gonchar is looking forward to joining a team that he's helped eliminate in two of the past three playoff years, as well as the prospect of playing in Canada after suiting up for the Washington Capitals, Boston Bruins and Penguins during his career.

"I played against Ottawa during last year's playoffs and I was able to see how good they are," Gonchar said in a conference call.

He's expected to visit Ottawa next week.

"They were close to making the next step and going far in the playoffs and I think I can help them with that.

"Also, playing in Canada is something special. Every time I've played in Canada, I always play better and I enjoy playing over there and that's another reason I wanted to sign with them."

Now, with youngster Erik Karlsson developing into an offensive blue-liner and Filip Kuba returning from a long spell out because of injury, the Senators have made over their blue-line into a much more mobile, creative bunch.

Even when the Cleveland Indians lost their season-worst seventh in a row last week, manager Manny Acta kept believing in his team.

Acta's faith in his players seems to be have paid off. Behind Justin Masterson's pitching and Matt LaPorta's slugging, the Indians beat the Toronto Blue Jays 6-1 Thursday for their season-high fifth straight win.

The Indians skidded on the road before closing the trip with a win in Cincinnati Sunday. Cleveland returned home Monday and sent the Blue Jays out of town with a four-game sweep.

"It was an outstanding series by the kids," Acta said.

The mood down the hall in the Blue Jays' clubhouse was decidedly different. Toronto has lost five in a row, matching its worst slump this year, and has dropped nine of 11.

Asked to describe his team's play in the series, Toronto manager Cito Gaston gave a blunt assessment.

"Terrible, awful, we played terrible," he said.

Masterson took a shutout into the ninth inning and LaPorta homered for the third straight game.

Masterson (3-7) blanked the Blue Jays until Jose Bautista led off the ninth with a double and Aaron Hill hit an RBI single with one out.

Shawn Marcum (7-4) didn't allow a hit in the first three innings, but fell apart in a six-run fourth. The inning started with walks to Shin-Soo Choo and Carlos Santana, and a pair of wild pitches moved the runners into scoring position.

After Travis Hafner struck out, LaPorta homered.

The Jays' offence has come to a complete stop. Toronto has been shut out twice and scored two or fewer runs six times in its last 11 games. The Jays, who lead the majors with 115 home runs, failed to homer in the series against Cleveland.

Bosh meets with Heat

Chris Bosh met with the Miami Heat in Chicago on Thursday, each side gauging the chance of him joining Dwyane Wade in South Florida for the next several seasons.

"It was good. It was good, real good," Bosh said Thursday evening outside his agent's office in downtown Chicago.

He also said he had "no offers yet." Later, Bosh was planning to meet with the New Jersey Nets.

Earlier, he had posted on Twitter that Heat president "Pat Riley is very passionate about winning."

The Heat have not made any public comment after any free-agent sessions, though there's clearly high mutual interest. Bosh told The Associated Press earlier this week that Miami is one of his top choices during the free-agent period.

TIME STOPS FOR NOTHING

Field of Play

SCOTT RUSSELL

Finally, there is a break in the action at the World Cup. After 19 consecutive days of high-stakes soccer, the clock has ceased to tick and the eight teams that remain reload for the quarter-finals.

It seems so strange. Maybe that's why they call it "The Beautiful Game," because of its relentless and inevitable continuation in spite of that which conspires to obstruct it. The World Cup hates to be interrupted.

There are no commercial timeouts. They must wait until the end of the half or the conclusion of the game.

Even injuries can't make time stand still.

Here's another thing — the World Cup is unkind to those who claim the passing years as an ally, the so-called experienced players.

Witness the stars of the current edition — Mesut Ozil, Thomas Muller, Lionel Messi, David Villa and Asamoah Gyan to name but a few.

The youngest is 20 years of age, while the oldest, Villa, is still only 28.

At the World Cup youth will be served.

Finally, there is no time to stop and argue about mistakes made by referees.

The underlying message is to play on in spite of any adversity.

That's the way it has to be because the game, not the referee, dictates the outcome.

It's true that beautiful goals like the one scored by Frank Lampard of England have to stand and if that means video technology, then so be it.

But someone has to find a way for that to become a reality without stopping the clock.

The example is the National Hockey League.

In the late 1990s, video reviews and the laughable mock drama of officials on telephones while rewinding tape machines almost ruined the sport.

The World Cup can't let that happen.

Time is what sets the World Cup apart and gives the tournament such aura.

This is a rare beast that occurs only once every four years and perhaps a single time in a player's lifetime.

It's also special because at the World Cup time is fleeting and it stops for nothing.

▶ Brazil-Netherlands quarter-final match has potential for plenty of goals ▶ Friday's other match features Uruguay vs. Ghana in battle of the surprise teams

For fans who want to see more scoring in soccer, Friday might be the time to tune in.

Brazil plays the Netherlands in the World Cup quarter-finals, and both teams are capable of filling the net.

The five-time champion Brazilians have Luis Fabiano, Robinho and Kaka, as dangerous a trio as any in the tournament.

The Dutch can counter with Arjen Robben, Wesley Sneijder and Robin van Persie.

It could make for some tantalizing soccer at Port Elizabeth (CBC, 10 a.m. ET).

"We have a very good connection, especially because of the time we played together for Sao Paulo. One look is enough to know what we are going to do," Kaka said of teaming with Luis Fabiano, who has three goals in the World Cup. "I hope to give him many more assists in the rest of the World Cup and that he ends up as the top scorer."

Robinho got his first goal of the tournament in a 3-0 victory over Chile in the round of 16.

Brazil might need lots of offence because the Dutch are dangerous. Robben returned to the lineup in the final group game after a hamstring injury, then started — and starred — against Slovakia, scoring the first goal in a 2-1 win.

Friday's other quarter-final has two relative surprises, Uruguay against Ghana (CBC, 2:30 p.m. ET, at Johannesburg).

Uruguay's success has been emblematic of South America's dominance in the tournament. All five of the continent's teams advanced, and four remain — Argentina plays Germany and Paraguay plays Spain on Saturday.

Uruguay's defence has been almost impenetrable, allowing only one goal, to South Korea in the second round. The last team to qualify for the tournament — it had to beat Costa Rica in a playoff — Uruguay has a dangerous scoring duo in Luis Suarez and Diego Forlan to go with its stingy defence.

The players are giving full credit for their best showing since making the 1970 semifinals to coach Oscar Tabarez.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You like to take the lead but that does not mean partners and colleagues will follow you blindly. If you want backing for what you are doing there will have to be something in it for them.

♉ Taurus April 23-May 21 If you sit back and wait for good things to come your way you may be disappointed, but if you go out and make things happen you will be rewarded abundantly.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 You cannot please all of the people all of the time and you should not even try. Whatever else you do today the most important thing is that you feel good about yourself.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Others may be happy to talk around a problem but you don't have the patience: you will call it as you see it today and if certain people don't like it that's just too bad.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 For some strange reason you are rather fearful at the moment and may fail to speak up in case you get it wrong. The sooner you snap out of it the better.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 You may have to change your plans at the last moment today and you won't be too happy about it, but the good news is the change will work in your favor.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You may not feel confident on the inside but if you can put on an act and look confident on the outside you'll get so much accomplished today.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 You may come to a conclusion on the basis of very little in the way of factual information or evidence but your Scorpio sensitivity is such that you will most likely be spot on in your evaluation.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 If you make some sort of blunder today you are advised to pretend it did not happen and carry on as normal.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 It may not be natural for you to discuss intimate matters with other people, not even those you are close to emotionally, but something needs to be brought into the open today.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 It may not be possible to know for certain what is the best course of action but that does not mean you should take no action at all.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Keep your emotions in check and try not to take anything too seriously today. The Sun in Cancer makes you incredibly dynamic but you need to keep a sense of perspective too. Try laughing at the world, and yourself, occasionally.
